So impressed was Archbishop Spellman with the B'nai B'rith float, shown above, which was part of the B'nai B'rith section of the "New York at War" parade held recently, that he and his associates rose and remained standing, and applauded. Headed by Bill Robinson's band of 30 pieces and Grand Marshall Hon. Myron Sulzberger, over five hundred B'nai B'rith and AZA members were in the line of march wearing civilian attire to represent the "home front". Governor Herbert H. Lehman, a member of New York Lodge 1, stood up to personally review the B'nai B'rith contingent.

Leading Jews Here Target of Plot; 50 Nazis Nabbed

Jewish Telegraphic Agency
PHILADELPHIA — Existence of a Nazi plot to injure hundreds of prominent American Jews was disclosed here in material seized when Federal Bureau of Investigation agents rounded up 150 German aliens in this city this week.

A chart found in the home of one of the arrested men listed the names of hundreds of prominent Jews, with their occupation, including any public office they held and close associates. In some cases words which had appeared next to some of the names had been scraped off, apparently with a pen knife. It is believed that the words indicated criminal intent of some kind. The FBI laboratory may be able to restore enough of the letters to make the deleted words legible, it was said.

900 Enlist in Palestine During Month of July

Jewish Telegraphic Agency
JERUSALEM—More than 1,900 men and Jewesses enlisted in various branches of the British armed forces here during the month of July, it was announced this week. The July enlistments bring the total number of Palestine Jews in the British army to 3,000, including 1,500 women. Among the latest recruits is Dr. Stern, former president of the Humanitarian Zionist Organization, and Dr. Chaim Bugrashev, 66-year-old director of a Tel Aviv school who has joined the special police.

PIECES OF HATE

Richard E. Gutstadt

Nat'l Dir. AntiDefamation League of B'nai B'rith

George Hornby of Boise, Idaho, who calls himself state executive committee-man of the "Disabled American Veterans of the World War," issued another blast against the Jews. Concerning us, he said:

"We feel confident that even though they succeed in their criminal purpose, the pioneer spirit of our founding fathers will eventually triumph, though not until torrents of "gentile" blood saturate the good earth, which is the Talmudic dream of every yiddisher down through the ages.

"Yes, we are in the war—what a war! And what a spectacle of stupefied gentiles bending their necks and submitting their wills—surrendering everything to the synagogue of Satan dominated, war-mongering administration."

A letter written by Rev. C. F. Connor of the Nativity Rectory, 44 2nd Ave., New York, N. Y. has been called to our attention. Speaking about the Jews, this priest says: (Grammatical errors not ours)

"I frankly hold they are a menace to our Christian civilization, but I do not blame them for that; I blame the weak-kneed Christian for letting drive Christ out of the Public Schools as they have done in New York City."

Father Connor, like his noteworthy contemporary whom obviously he seeks to emulate, makes a slight distinction between the Jews, calling one a "kike" and the other a Jew. He asserts:

"The Jew is usually a good citizen and a good man. The kike is almost always a Red. This persecution of the Jews is not a religious persecution for more than nine-tenths of the men of Jewish blood belong to no religion at all and never go near a synagogue. They are atheists and Reds."

Should there still be any misgivings about Father Connor, I can only quote one more phrase: "The best friend the Jews in America ever had was Rev. Father Coughlin."

As was pointed out in the last column, it has always been the technique of the Christian Front to keep changing the names of its various units whenever any particular one receives too much discrediting publicity. Consequently, a new group in addition to the "Americans for (Continued on page 4)

Pelley's Attempt to Confuse Issue With Anti-Jewish Diatribes Fails as Jury Says "Guilty"

William Dudley Pelley's short-lived stay in Indiana as a spreader of Nazi and Axis propaganda and an exponent of the scapegoat theory of success for rabble rousers ended precipitately Wednesday night in the Federal Court of the Southern District of Indiana when he was convicted on 11 counts of sedition. He will be sentenced by Judge Robert C. Baltzell next Wednesday.

Invited to leave Indiana when an exposé in the Indianapolis Star told of the setting up by Mr. Pelley of his headquarters at Noblesville, he ignored the invitation and continued his pro-Axis harangues in his publications. Two of his accomplices were convicted with him, each on one count apiece of sedition.

Pelley tried to make the trial a sounding board for his anti-Semitic theories, and answered all charges against him by declaring that he sought only to remove the Jewish and Communist influences, which he said, following Hitler's technique, were one and the same thing. On the stand Monday, Pelley struck out bitterly against the Jews, declaring that Karl Marx's real name was Mordecai, and making the sweeping statement that Jews and Communists were synonymous and ascribing this definition to Rabbi Stephen S. Wise of the Free Synagogue of New York. Pelley's attorneys asked their questions so that this line of argument could be brought out.

Attorneys for the United States, however, made not the least attempt to refute any of the diatribes and charges against the Jews, preferring not to fall into this trap of confusing the jurors on the sedition charge.

On the stand Tuesday Charles A. Lindbergh proved of no help to Mr. Pelley, although ex-congressman Jacob Thorkelson, declaring loudly he was not anti-Semitic, repeated the charges about Jews and communism and brought out the old phrase about "international bankers" in London, Paris and Wall Street as behind-the-scenes rulers of the world.

I HEARD PELLEY TESTIFY

By G. M. COHEN

I attended the Pelley-trial Monday, and heard most of the testimony of the Silver Shirt leader. I heard him accuse the Jews of an international conspiracy to rule the world, I heard him say that Communism and the Jews were synonymous, I heard him declare that Rabbi Stephen S. Wise of New York was his authority for that statement, and I heard him say that Jewish writers and leaders and speakers have all since verified it.

This was the first time I have heard such statements made publicly before an audience, and although I have read of innumerable instances where such charges were made, the courtroom scene did not appear fantastic until in retrospect. At the time, I just sat there just as naturally as did the filled (not crowded) courtroom, and listened as if I were hearing any other ordinary statements. But now the whole scene seems incongruous. The almost too-well groomed Pelley, (he really makes a distinguished appearance) his sincere-sounding voice, the absence of any contradiction as he continued to spew out his venom, and the gestures and inflections Pelley used as he strove to convince all present of his sincerity and truth, all this now seems utterly fantastic in Indianapolis in 1942 in the austere and dignified U. S. Courtroom.

But as I sat there none of these reactions struck me. Now, a day later, I would like to throw the lie back into Pelley's face. If Jews were ruling the world and had brought on its present chaos, why were two million Jews dying in Europe, if Jews were the powers that be, why was Palestine denied them, why couldn't the Jews of Palestine be allowed to arm themselves and fight as honorable men, if Jews were in power, (Continued on page 4)

Call for Sugar Issued By Kirshbaum USO

The Kirshbaum USO Club this week issued an S. O. S. to the generous members of the community, the "S. O. S." in this instance standing for "Send Over Sugar"! Sugar rationing has made it difficult for the Club to secure sugar needed for preparing food and drinks served to the Army and Navy men, and families who do not need and are not using their full allotment of sugar are asked to buy their full quota and contribute the excess of their own demands to the USO Club. Coupon 7 is a special bonus stamp for two pounds each, it was said, and all sugar gifts from as little as one pound to as much as can be spared will be appreciated.

Feuerlicht at Service Tonight

Rabbi David S. Shapiro and Cantor S. Levin of Knesses Israel Congregation, conducted the regular Friday evening Jewish services in the Post Chapel at Fort Harrison this past week. Supper Hostesses Named

Last Sunday evening found the usual throng of soldiers and sailors enjoying a bountiful service-men's supper—this time prepared and served by the women of the United Hebrew Congregation. Assisting Mrs. H. Peale, chairman of the committee were Mesdames A. Pozner, F. Bernard, S. Goldman, N. Resnick, M. Izsak, F. Izsak, B. Stein, M. Berkowitz, H. Silverman, G. Cohen, H. Gross, M. Finkel and Miss Helen Samuel and Miss Clara Silverman.

Hear Ann Kahn

In addition to its usual program of recorded music, the Symphony Record Club this past Sunday evening presented Ann Kahn, in person, who played several piano solos in between the recordings, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Frank, host and hostess to the gathering. Next week's meeting will take place at the home of Zalman Cohen and is open to all servicemen.

To Close Saturday Afternoon

The experiment of having Kirshbaum Center USO Club open during the day on Saturdays, which was given a trial for four weeks, is being abandoned and the 6:30 p. m. openings on Saturdays will be resumed. Most servicemen, it was found, prefer to spend their Saturday afternoons at outdoor pools and other activities in the open.

Hostesses Get Training

More than 70 women attended the two-hour training period for hostesses for the Kirshbaum USO Club last Tuesday. Speakers were Lt. William D. Trott, Special Service Officer at Ft. Harrison, and Miss Grace Hawk, in charge of training hostesses in this city. The chairman of the meeting was Mrs. Victor Goldberg. By Jewish Telegraphic Agency

NEW YORK—American soldiers on the Middle Eastern front are the latest to enjoy the hospitality of Palestine's "Service Clubs" which are the Holy Land's version of the U.S.O., according to a report received here this week by the United Palestine Appeal. The "Service Clubs," whose welcome mats have already been trodden by thousands of British, Fighting French, Polish, Czech, Yugoslav, Dutch and Belgian troops, as well as Palestine's own Jewish fighters in the Allied forces, are subsidized by U.P.A. funds. The clubs furnish information, arrange parties, dances, sightseeing trips, sports, etc., and even provide home-cooked meals at the homes of Jewish families.

8,000 South African Jews Serving With British

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency

JOHANNESBURG—More than 8,000 South African Jews, about nine percent of the total Jewish population of the Union of South Africa, are serving with the British forces, of which 3,000 are on the Middle Eastern front, it was reported this week at the fourteenth biennial congress of the Board of Deputies of South African Jews, which opened this week.

Gerald Lazarus, president of the Deputies, revealed that 131 of the Jewish soldiers had been killed in the Libyan and Egyptian campaign, while 127 were wounded and 229 are missing, and were probably captured by the Nazis. These figures exclude the casualties suffered in the fall of Tobruk, which it is feared are quite high, Mr. Lazarus said. He disclosed that 13 Jews fighting in North Africa have been awarded decorations and 21 have been mentioned in official dispatches. The heroism of the Jewish troops "has opened the eyes of some confirmed anti-Semites," Mr. Lazarus stated and relations between Jews and non-Jews in the forces are excellent.

Full support of the Allied war effort and a demand that a post-war order must provide complete equality for Jews as individuals in whatever country they live and as a national entity was contained in a resolution adopted this week by the 350 delegates.

Early Saturday Opening Riot Cause

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency

JERUSALEM—A campaign by extremist sections of the orthodox groups in the Yishuv against the "desecration" of the Sabbath by motion picture theatres that begin to sell tickets and start their performances before nightfall on Saturday has precipitated several outbreaks of violence here.

On Saturday, a small group of Orthodox demonstrators before several of the cinemas were beaten up. That night two small bombs exploded outside the Orion and Zion theatres without causing any damage. The orthodox adherents charge that the "desecration" of the Sabbath is preventing the coming of the Messiah and consequently postponing victory.

Nazis Torture Jew Inventing Secret Weapon

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency

LONDON—A French-Jewish professor who had perfected an invention of great military value was tortured to death by the Germans in a vain attempt to extort the secret from him, it was disclosed this week by Paul Simon, a former Catholic deputy in the French parliament, speaking at Norwich. The professor, whom Mr. Simon did not name was first tortured by having his hands roasted over a slow fire, and when this failed his skull was crushed by slow pressure. He died, however, without divulging any information to the Nazis.

Hungary Grumbles Over Inability To Fill Jews' Jobs

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency

ZURICH — The Hungarian authorities are experiencing great difficulty as a result of the ousting of Jews from positions in the economic life of the country, it is revealed in a report published in the "Magyar Orszag," reaching here this week.

According to the report, the Hungarian Minister of Propaganda has issued an appeal to the population encouraging them to take over positions which the Jews have been forced to give up. "Hungarians must not be nervous or hesitant," the appeal says. "They must learn to assume responsibility."

The growth of mixed farming in Palestine is shown in a report of the Palestine Foundation Fund. In 267 Jewish settlements 24,000 tons of tomatoes, 7,300 tons of potatoes, and more than 4,000,000 bundles of radishes were grown in the last year. 325,000 boxes of strawberries were also marketed.

I HEARD PELLEY

why was he, Pelley, not silenced years ago?

I say Pelley's charges Tuesday went unanswered. I didn't figure it out at first, but after talking with the only three Jewish persons who witnessed the trial I understood better. Pelley was not on trial for his accusations against the Jews. Despite the fact that he was using the trial as a sounding board for his silly charges, the prosecution was striving its best to separate this part of Pelley's history, from what the man is really indicted for—sedition.

As a result Pelley ranted on, abetted by his lawyers, about the Jews, and ascribed that and not sedition as his reason for writing what he did. And not one word was uttered in refutation. For instance Pelley insisted and weighed heavily on what he said Rabbi Stephen S. Wise had said in 1938, that Jews were behind communism, that Judaism and Communism were one and the same thing.

That he got his point across effectively was obvious. For during the noon recess all three of the Jewish men at the trial came up to me separately and point blank said: "Did Rabbi Wise make such a statement?" Naturally Rabbi Wise did not, and if the prosecution so wanted they could (this is being written at 7 a. m. Tuesday and to show up Pelley's dishonesty this charge are interested in the welfare of the organization.

From California comes the welcome news that William Ernest Kullgren, publisher of the pro-Axis, anti-Jewish magazine, the "Beacon Light," has, after many years of agitating for totalitarianism, been indicted by the Grand Jury on charges of sedition.

William Lemke, best known for his political associations with Father Coughlin, won the primary election for United States Congressman in North Dakota.

testimony in the trial, these charges would be repeated to the millions of readers in papers throughout the nation, and for that matter throughout the world. But if you noticed the local daily papers, you would have read only wisps of Pelley's anti-Jewish statements. Whether the big news agencies like the Associated Press and the United Press are falling for this propaganda trick, remains to be seen.

In this respect I want to call your attention to the fact that in the indictment of the 28 other pro-Axis propagandists, like the pee wee from Muncie, Court Asher, one of the charges is specifically the fact that these fascists have been using the Jewish question to stir up hatred and division in the war effort. Consequently in

Japs' Jewish Prisoners Get Religious Articles

Special

NEW YORK—A shipment of Bibles, prayer books, religious articles and books for American prisoners of war of the Jewish faith held by the Japanese has been made by the Jewish Welfare Board through arrangements with the War Prisoners Aid of the World's Committee of YMCA's, it was announced this week.

The Jewish religious and ritual materials provided by the board include Sefer Torahs, abridged prayer books and Bibles, phylacteries, prayer shawls, full text Bibles in both English and Hebrew, and other synagogue appurtenances, and Jewish histories and literary works. In all, 30 items are included. A Sefer Torah is included for each of the five prison camps.

may be refuted later in the trial make Pelley eat his words, but I doubt that they will. They would only be falling into the trap Pelley and his attorneys are scheming, and would confuse the real issue.

Here I should point out that the local daily papers are not falling into the trap. Pelley could have figured that whereas his anti-Jewish fulminations were broadcast only to his group through his publications, now as they became their court trials, and possibly in the newspaper accounts, the charges may be aired fully.

I didn't hear the testimony previous to Monday's session, but I have been told that these days too were filled with allegations against the Jews, they too going unanswered. There are only about 100 people who can get into the courtroom, and most of them seem to be Pelley's followers, so I should say that Mr. Pelley is failing dismally in his attempt to use this trial to propagandize.

Lutheran Bishops Assail Nazi Policy

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency

ZURICH—The anti-Jewish policy of the Nazi puppet-state of Slovakia was assailed in a pastoral letter issued recently by the country's two Lutheran bishops, it was learned here.

In the letter, which brands Nazi-Fascist political ideology founded on false premises, the bishops reserve the right to baptize Jews, an issue which brought both the Catholic and Lutheran churches into conflict with the government. The bishops who issued the letter are Vladimir Cobrda, of Presov, and Dr. Stefan S. Osusky, of Bratislava. The Evangelical Church of the Augsburg Confession, as the Lutheran church is known, has an estimated 300,000 members and 319 parishes in Slovakia.

IN THE WIND

Among the names mentioned for the Governorship of Puerto Rico is that of Dr. Herman B. Baruch, who is an expert on Caribbean questions though his name is not as well known as that of his brother, Bernard M. Baruch.

THIS AND THAT

What impelled the New York Daily News, largest circulation daily tabloid in the country, to fume so against immigrants in a recent editorial? Such an un-American policy should not go unnoticed. Pierre van Paassen recently had to use a "striking" argument to convince an anti-Semite that racial and religious intolerance has no place in our democracy. Hollywood, incidentally, is preparing a film on Thomas G. Masaryk, and is looking for an actor to impersonate the late Justice Louis D. Brandeis, who backed the Czechs' national aspirations in the Wilsonian days.

WORLD OF LETTERS

William B. Ziff, the Chicago magazine magnate whose "Coming Battle of Germany" is considered an important book on the question of air power in this war, is launching a new fiction magazine that will feature several full length novels in each issue. Author Lewis Browne has spent a good part of the summer traveling from Army camp to Army camp, delivering lectures to the boys in training. Novelist Louis Golding also has been doing some Army camp lecturing. Louis Nizer, the attorney and author, is preparing a tome dealing with the subject of what we should do with the Germans after the war. Novelist Franz Werfel, relates Leonard Lyons, recently was invited to attend a Refugee Dinner. "What?" was the refugee author's shocked comment. "Are they eating them now?"

ABOUT PEOPLE

Professor Albert Einstein's physicians have ordered him to take things very easy. Which means that organizations anxious to show the proper respect and consideration for the great scientist will not bother him with requests for testimonials, speeches and acceptance of membership in their committees. It was Edward G. Robinson who recited excerpts from Abraham Lincoln's writings at a Hollywood performance last week of "Lincoln Portrait," a new composition by Aaron Copland, one of this country's most distinguished modern composers. The Soviet picture "Inside Fighting Russia" has a scene showing a youth building a barricade. And that youth, we are told, is the son of Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet Ambassador at Washington. Robert Stolz, the refugee composer whose "Two Hearts in Three Quarter Time" may be heard on Broadway again next season, wants it known that it isn't his fault that the Nazis made one of his catchy tunes a storm-trooper song. They didn't ask his permission, and, indeed, are taking care not to credit the music to him, as he is persona non grata with them.

WEEKLY GIGGLE

Maxie Rosenbloom, the actor-boxer, tells of three men sitting on a park bench in Germany. One was reading the afternoon paper, and kept saying "Ts-ts-ts" to himself. The second man, his curiosity aroused, craned his neck to read the story, and pretty soon he too was saying "Ts-ts-ts." So the third man got up to leave, saying, "If you two are going to discuss the war, I can't stay here."

THE HULEH CONCESSION

VAST ECONOMIC POSSIBILITIES TOLD

(Reprinted from Palestine News Bulletin)

THE important role which the vast swamp area of the Huleh, in the north of Palestine, as a reservoir of a variety of raw materials, could play in the expansion of Palestine's economic efforts, has long been stressed.

It has been pointed out, for instance, that the Huleh could furnish many millions of tons of peat. This peat, after inexpensive processing, could be used as an important organic fertilizer, as a preservative material for fruit and vegetables, as raw material for the production of coke and the distillation of gas, yielding as by-products: ethyl alcohol, acetic acid, paraffin, etc.

As there is at present a great deficiency in organic fertilizers in the Middle East, the utilization sionaires had made no progress whatever with the reclamation. The many offers made by Jewish colonization institutions, which had so many reclamation achievements to their credit, including the draining of the malarial Valley of Jezreel, were not accepted until a few years ago. Finally, the Palestine Land Development Co., was permitted to take over the concession, on condition that it pay the defaulting concessionaires a sum of LP. 200,000 (at that time approximately $1,000,000) and set aside 15,000 dunam (3750 acres) of reclaimed and irrigated land for the present Arab cultivators.

The cost of the drainage scheme which the Jewish organizations undertook to provide was LB. 700,000 ($3,500,000). A Government contribution was promised, but the final decision about the scheme came only a week before the outbreak of the war, so that the whole project has had to be shelved for the duration.

In the meantime, however, many preliminary arrangements have been completed, a certain amount of anti-malaria work undertaken, and a number of new Jewish settlements have been established on the edge of the Huleh marshes.

The reclamation of the Huleh will, in the words of an official statement, "convert what is at present the most malarial tract in Palestine into a healthy and prosperous countryside."

In view of the ample water available from the Jordan and its tributaries, it will be possible to transform the Huleh into one of the most valuable of Palestine's agricultural assets. The reclamation scheme would give employment to thousands of Jewish workers and provide, when completed, room for the settlement of many thousands of Jewish farmers, and through them to many others.

NON-JEW TELLS HOW WAR AFFECTS PRACTICE OF JUDAISM IN ENGLAND

To the editor,

Your readers no doubt would like to know something of the conditions of Jewish life in Great Britain resulting from the destruction caused by Nazi bombings.

Well, we all know the fulcrum of Judaism is not the synagogue but the home. When these homes are broken up, as in the present war, children are deprived in many cases of domestic Jewish influence and the whole system finds itself subject to an unprecedented strain. Also, observances and ceremonials, never easy to follow, are at times like the present extremely difficult to conduct and, in some instances, quite impossible.

Hence it is probably true-to say that the religious life of the Jews in Great Britain has been affected as a consequence of the war more than that of any other religious denomination.

Anglo-Jewry has of course shared the general vicissitudes. The number of synagogues destroyed by enemy action has been high. In London alone the principle places of worship of every part of the community have been destroyed or put out of action. For example, on the same night that Westminster Abbey was so badly damaged the Cathedral Synagogue of Anglo-Jewry in the East End, the historic Great Synagogue, built in 1772, was destroyed.

All this havoc touches religious life only at its fringes, for a community that is seriously affected by the destruction of bricks and mortar is obviously lacking in vitality. Indeed, the destruction has resulted in a closer sympathy between the religious creeds. The interchange of pulpits and buildings between congregations of different denominations, so common in the United States, was formerly unusual in Great Britain. After the great blitz on Plymouth, the synagogue—one of the oldest in England—was placed at the disposal of the local parish church, which had been destroyed; while the congregation of the Great Synagogue in London (Continued on page 10)

AL SEGAL Speaks On

Last Victory

HERE WAS TROUBLE in hell and the devil was in conference. As far back as anybody in hell could remember things always had run smoothly there before this. Even in times of flux elsewhere in the universe, the devil always had had a firm grip on the affairs of his domain.

There had been occasions when even the authority of God was challenged by impudent little men who set themselves up on earth and shook their fists at the firmament. These were comic manifestations in the sight of God.

He went about His work. He kept the stars in their courses, busied Himself with the seasons, compounded the fragrance of the roses, as He always had. In due time He caused impudent men to be reduced to whence they came. Sometime later He might see a grain of infinitesimal dust blowing in the wind. He knew what it was: It was the dust of an impudent man who had stood one day shaking his fist at the firmament. Then God laughed.

But no one had ever thought of challenging the authority of the devil. Nobody ever had wanted to take over hell. Even Hitler in the time he was marching over the earth, trampling upon the children, slaying mercy and loving-kindness until he came almost to the right bastions of heaven itself, even in that time Hitler made no threats against the devil's hell.

Hell was not in the blueprint of "Mein Volk of Germany whose youth they had devastated on earth and let the devil's alone. He had quite well succeeded, too. The corpses he had made had lain in mountainous heaps. The moans of the starving had been carried on all the winds around the earth. Immense graves contained the bones of multitudes who had been made to die for no offense of their own.

Worse off were those he allowed to live and to suffer life in the shadow of doom. Their lives were lived by the hour; no righteous man in his dominions knew but that before the next hour struck he would be called to perish for having fed the starving, or for being suspected of harboring ideas of freedom, or for being a Jew.

The devil had looked at all this with admiration not unmixed with envy. "Hitler," he confessed, "is pretty good, too." Yet, at that time, he could have no fear of Hitler rising up to be a rival for the dictatorship of hell. The devil felt secure in his own empire.

• Hitler, he said, still had plenty to do on the earth: There was still no little loving-kindness to be murdered on the earth, still much faith to be betrayed. There were left some flickering lights to be extinguished to make a totalitarian darkness. As long as there was still so much to be done to make hell complete on the earth, the devil could feel safe from Hitler.

Besides, the devil knew history: He had seen all the iniquitous conquerors fall into his own hell eventually. He laughed and whimsically took up knitting a thick woolen sweater for Hitler in hell.

But now the devil was afraid. History had fulfilled its ancient promise of ultimate defeat for the arrogance of conquerors. That day, all over the world, people were dancing on the streets for the victory and the happy end of the bitter years.

Their eyes were bright with a gorgeous vision of a good, new world. Yes, tomorrow they must start to build it. Today they must dance but tomorrow they would start to build the good, new world on the mountain top toward the sunlight.

Hitler and all his hierarchy had been captured and imprisoned. It was not by the hands of their foreign enemies that they were taken. Their own people had imprisoned them and were holding them against the hour of judgment.

They were accused of treason to the people of Germany whose youth they had devastated on the battlefields; treason to mankind; treason to civilization and to all the decencies that man had established in the upward ages away from the savage.

The people danced today but tomorrow they would trample out the vintage where the grapes of wrath were stored. Tomorrow would be a day of judgment for the traitors; tomorrow the retribution which, according to the promise, must fall upon the transgressors. Tomorrow they would pay for all the Lidices, for the innocent dead cut down like the grass. Tomorrow the hangings.

"Tomorrow," the devil said, "they will be coming to hell in one big crowd," and he was afraid. He was in conference on the crisis that was about to fall on hell.

"So many of them coming — almost the whole Nazi party," the devil worried. He was mindful of their ruthless march over the earth — the way they had taken over one country and another until they had almost the whole world — the efficient way they had managed hell on earth — the way they had uprooted governments and set up their own authority in many lands — the way they had driven established rulers into exile. Now they were coming to hell in a body. The devil trembled for his authority in hell. "They'll be here in 24 hours." He ordered guards set all over hell.

The hanged Nazis arrived in hell on a thunderous march of goose-steps. They pushed the devil's guards out of the way.

"But gentlemen," the devil protested. Hitler's body guard muscled the devil aside. . . . "But, gentlemen. . . ." Hitler himself took his seat on the Satanic throne, flanked by Goering and Goebbels, Himmler and Streicher. . . . "But, gentlemen. . . ." the devil kept protesting.

Hitler gave out a brief gutteral proclamation: From this hour hell was a Nazi dominion. He himself would be the Fuehrer in hell as he had been on earth. He was certain the new order would prosper in hell. The subversive forces of democracy that had defeated the New Order on the earth could not prevail in this subterranean depths. "Lebensraum!" he shouted. A thunder of "heils" echoed through the sulphurous chambers of hell.

ROOMS IN TWO HOSPITALS FITTED OUT IN MEMORY OF JULIUS SEEBERGER

Special

SOUTH BEND — A generous addition to each of South Bend's two hospitals was made known this week in the announcement of the gift by Mrs. Samuel Spiro of a beautifully appointed room in each. Both were given in memory of her brother, the late Julius Seeberger, who for years was one of this city's leading philanthropists. He was identified with the clothing business of Samuel Spiro for years before his death in 1939. Most of his gifts were made quietly without ostentation, and many people were unaware of his generosity until after his death.

The room given by Mrs. Spiro in Epworth hospital is a beautifully appointed reception room and library, completely equipped. It is on the first floor and will connect the present hospital with the addition now being erected. The room in St. Joseph hospital is a patient's room, fitted with the latest in hospital equipment, and with a new and highly useful adjustable patient's table.

Sees Welfare Funds Harmed by War Chests

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency

NEW YORK — The merger of Jewish welfare fund activities with community war chests, which has been put into effect in several cities, would have an adverse effect on certain aspects of Jewish philanthropic activities, especially those of a cultural nature and overseas relief, declares Jacob Fishman, writing in the Jewish Morning Journal.

Mr. Fishman stated that the same reasons which actuated the Red Cross to reject the proposal to join the war chest plan are equally valid for the Jewish welfare federation and such bodies as the JDC and the United Palestine Appeal, which are faced with specific and peculiar ideas and ideals that would suffer from amalgamation in a single war chest.

Air Raid Warning Course To Be Given in Yiddish

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency

CHELSEA, Mass. — Believed to be one of the first of its kind in the nation, an air-raid precaution course in Yiddish will be given in Chelsea under the auspices of the local Committee on Public Safety, it was announced this week. The course is being offered to aid the many elderly Jewish people in Chelsea who cannot understand English well and thus do not have a clear knowledge of air-raid precautions.

Senator Mead Joins Jewish Army Group

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency

NEW YORK — U. S. Senator James M. Mead of New York has joined the Committee for a Jewish Army of Stateless and Palestinian Jews, it was announced this week.

Senator Mead, in joining the Committee, said: "For years we made the mistake of trying to compromise with our democratic ideals. Today, we are repeating that mistake. We are not fully mobilizing our moral resources. Less appeasement and more vision, less fear and more courage — these are the urgent needs of that moment. And there in Palestine is one vital instance where we can demonstrate such statesmanship and vision and courage."

NORMAN ISAACS who happens to be an Al Segal fan (aren't we all) tells how Bob Efroymsen (now in the army) used to turn to Segal's column the very first thing on reading The Post. Norman said that Bob would read Segal and peruse the editorial page (a personal plug) and then just glance through the rest of the paper. Incidentally I believe Segal's staunchest supporter is Al Schamberg, proprietor of Schamberg's Around the Corner Shop in the Circle Tower Building. Mr. Schamberg's complains like anything when for some reason Segal's column is omitted some week.

IN LAST WEEK'S PAPER there was printed just the smallest announcement that the Joint Distribution Committee had the names and addresses of a few hundred Jewish refugees from the Baltic Countries who were now in Siberia. Well, you would think that the item would hardly be noticed, yet we've had any number of letters from out-of-town and any number of calls locally to determine if such and such a name or family was included on the list. There must be more Indiana Jewish people with sisters and brothers and aunts and uncles and fathers and mothers in Eastern Europe than is generally believed.

MILTON (Josh) FINEBERG called Monday to impart to this paper a big scoop. Well, it turns out that it is good news. Gil Roskin, a past president of the Indiana-Kentucky State Association of B'nai B'rith has been appointed a member of the Grant County Draft Board by Governor Schricker. That's a nice honor, and anyone that knows Gil, who seems to have not one enemy anywhere, he's of such a good nature, will agree that the Governor couldn't have made a finer choice.

I HAVE BEEN TRYING for the past three weeks to get a Jewish girl to work for me, travelling around the state. This is a good job, and will pay very well. I already have four girls working (bookkeepers, stenographers, etc.) and five can't be any worse than four. Honest though, we have a real loyal staff, and fortunately they are all well pleased with their jobs and their salary. I believe The Post pays better salaries (all except me) than any newspaper in Indianapolis and I don't mean only the Jewish papers either. The girls all start at $17.50, and one makes close to twice that much already.

MRS BEN KARP, who has made a very fine correspondent for us in Vincennes, sends in her news headed VINCENTINES POST. The way we've been covering state news for the past year, it can be almost said that most Jewish communities throughout Indiana now have their own Jewish papers, but this is as nothing to the coverage we will be able to give the places like Evansville, South

Our Film Folks— HOLLYWOOD

By HELEN ZIGMOND

HOLLYWOOD — Warners are planning an expedition to Moscow to film backgrounds for "Mission to Moscow," the Joseph Davies' picture. They're also seeking a loan from the U. S. S. R. . . . not for money . . . just for props . . . they need several thousand rubles.

Riskin, Briskin, and Nod one night . . . oh, excuse please . . . we were about to say . . . Briskin, and Briskin—Samuel, Irving and Barney . . . all brothers . . . are all in the film industry . . . and all have been Presidents of the B'nai B'rith Lodge, Beverly Hills Branch.

The Social Front: At the Cantor menage, Ida and their five young chicks keep the Welcome sign bright for boys in uniform . . . their swimming pool is open to all, and they have food and movie stars on hand for entertainment. Junior Laemmle's swimming pool is also available to servicemen, and his sister, Rosabelle, is there to hostess the food.

Thoughts while rambling: Seventy-five per cent of the conductors and soloists of this summer's Hollywood Bowl belong to Our Lodge. Are we inherently musical . . . or is it because Uproar Adolf drove so many artists to our shores?

When Air Cadet Epstein heard that Jack Oakie was going to sing "Eli, Eli" in his next picture, he wrote the actor how much he wanted to hear it, but that in all probability he wouldn't be in this country when the film was complete. Forthwith Oakie made a recording . . . and pronto, shipped the tune to the cadet.

Zig's-Zags: "It's whispered that Ernst Lubitsch and Writer Mary Anita Loos will duet when his divorce is final. At a surprise birthday party George Tobias was serenaded with songs representing the nationalities of all the dialects he has used in his flicker career.

Bend, Gary, Fort Wayne, etc., if The Post continues to grow the way it has in the past months.

COME TO THINK OF IT there has been a real turnover in the spiritual leaders of the city in the past year. Not only has Rabbi Charry left, but three congregations have added new rabbis in that time. When Beth El brings in its new rabbi, there will have been four new rabbis brought to the city in the past year, two replacing other rabbis, and two additions.

I HEAR THAT the Indianapolis Jewish Federation has appointed a committee of five to go over the community setup from the stand-point of the professional organizations like the Federation, the J. C. C. A., etc. Just a desire to streamline some of the work in accordance with conditions that may have changed in the past few years, I understand.

BOOKS

WHAT THE MOON BROUGHT by Sadie Rose Weilerstein, illustrated by Mathilda Keller. Published by Jewish Publication Society of America.

By MRS. BEN PALLER

HERE is an entertaining, delightfully written Jewish storybook for children up to eight years of age.

Ruth and Debby, two charming little girls, follow the moon around the Jewish year, stopping off for an adventure at every holiday. Their experiences with their family and friends, not only make good reading, but at the same time provide a colorful introduction to the holidays.

With Ruth and Debby, the child reader celebrates each occasion with all the pleasant customs and ceremonies that have meaning to an American Jewish child. Rosh Hashonah presented as the World's birthday with the glistening stars as birthday candles is an idea to appeal to a child's imagination.

Purim as a day of fun and food and masquerading for the children and their dolls makes the occasion come alive for the very young boy and girl.

In the same manner, each holiday is presented so that a child is sure to grasp its meaning and history. In addition the story of each celebration is given in sufficient exact detail so that the reader is inspired and enabled to repeat the adventure in his own home and with his own family and friends.

The Passover story is especially appealing to the imaginative child. After the Passover, off to Haggadah-land the Passover dishes go, meeting with strange and amusing adventures until the next Pesach moon rises and they hurry back to serve at the seder.

The book is profusely illustrated with delightful and humorous drawings by Mathilda Keller. The writing is clear and colorful, and is especially suitable for reading aloud because of the many rhymes which a child loves to hear.

Mrs. Weilerstein, a former teacher, is the wife of Rabbi Baruch Reuben Weilerstein of Atlantic City. They have four children, and Mrs. Weilerstein says that her stories were written primarily for her own children.

The book seems an excellent answer to the question, "What shall I tell my little child about the holidays?"

The editor's chair,

I was interested in the story we printed several weeks ago about the reaffirmation of America's traditional policy in support of a Jewish National Homeland in Palestine by Josephus Daniels, former Secretary of the Navy, and newspaper owner of Raleigh, N. C., because Mr. Daniels is an alumnus of my college, the University of North Carolina. Mr. Daniels' statement, which received very wide and favorable comment, was powerful because in it he pointed out quite truthfully that the Arabs received a great deal, probably more than their contribution to the Allied victory warranted, by the Versailles Treaty, and listed the new nations like Transjordania, Iraq and Saudi Arabia carved out of the Near East for them.

Then last week I ran across a page from the Free Synagogue Weekly Bulletin, which I had been saving, because it had a quotation from a speech made by Mr. Daniels before a State Convention of the B'nai B'rith last November. I reprint the quotation here:

"In his famous lecture "The Scattered Nation" North Carolina's first and most beloved statesman, Zebulon B. Vance, compares the Jewish race to Commodore Maury's description of the Gulf Stream. It is a river in the ocean issuing from the Gulf of Mexico with its mouth in the Arctic Ocean. Its current is more rapid than the Mississippi, and its waters of indigo blue are so distinctly marked that their line of junction with the common sea water may be traced by the eye. The line of division and the lack of affinity is such that the water of the Gulf Stream flows in the ocean and yet maintains it distinct identity. This curious phenomenon in the physical world finds its counterpart in the moral. A gulf of humanity flows into the ocean of mankind, a part of its essence and maintaining its separate identity. It touches but does not unite wholly with the larger currents of which it is a part. It is the Jewish race driven from the Fatherland by the cruel force of conquest, finding anchorage in every land and clime, cooperating in commerce and in all the affairs of

Pelley Trial Sets Precedent

CONVICTION of William Dudley Pelley on eleven counts of sedition by a Marion County jury merely affirms the very simple theory, expounded by attorneys for the U. S. government that anyone who urges the support and approbation of the policies of the nations now at war with us must have the same intentions as those nations—to defeat us in battle.

The statement is so simple that many people will wonder why Pelley did not end his fulminations against the U. S. government and the war effort on Dec. 7.

Pelley and the others indicted for sedition were guilty of bad judgment, having been misled into believing that the time was ripe to bring dissension into the open, and having been betrayed by their own egotism which could not withstand the thought of the national publicity their acts were bringing them. These people saw the war effort going bad for the United States and thought to capitalize on the trend of events. They mistook the complacency of most of the government authorities and they misread history to the extent of believing that the conditions in this country were a similar pattern to that of Germany just prior to Hitler's rise to the chancellorship.

The jury of Marion county farmers and small business men rendered a decision which will provide a precedent for attorneys conducting the prosecution of others charged with the same malfeasance, and at the same time will prove a deterrent to those who, failing to discern the fundamental difference between the American and Nazi mind, would have been spurred on to continue their dastardly work against this nation.

State B'nai B'rith to Streamline Conventions

DECISION to shorten the overcrowded program of the annual convention of the Indiana-Kentucky State Association of B'nai B'rith by eliminating the reading of many of the reports in favor of multigraphed copies of these reports for all delegates, is a move long advocated by many lodge leaders, and should go far towards improving the one-day sessions.

Heretofore the reading of reports occupied so much of the few hours available, that much of the very necessary work of the Association, such as elections and new business was necessarily crowded into the last few minutes. Under the new arrangement, the program will be loosened up, and instead of the hustle and hurry, calm and time for deliberation should be the marks of the sessions.

"We are making plans for the annual State convention," Seymour Weisberger wrote this week to committee chairmen, "and the executive committee has decided to streamline the agenda and instead of having all of the committee chairmen read reports at the convention, it is our decision to have every committee chairman submit a typewritten report of its year's activity, so that all of the committee reports can be multigraphed and combined into pamphlet form. These pamphlets," Mr. Weisberger continued, "will be distributed to the delegates upon their arrival at the convention. Some of these reports will be selected to be read at the convention."

Many very fine changes have been made this year in the operation of the State Association and the new move is certainly not among the least of these.

How Judge Arranged Jewish Marriage Told in The Jewish Ledger, of Hartford, Conn.—We want to bring to the attention of our readers an incident which deserves not only special mention but also wider knowledge and emulation by the right persons.

The other day a Jewish couple from out of town appeared before a Judge of Probate in greater Hartford asking for a waiver of the five-day regulation and to be married by the civil authority. The reason for the waiver was entirely satisfactory to the Judge of Probate, but, said the Judge to the young people, I have strong convictions on the matter of marriage, and I do not approve of a couple who have been reared in any faith to be married outside of their faith and by someone other than the regularly constituted authority of that religion. He urged very strongly that the young people be married by a Rabbi. They knew none. He then asked them whether they were Orthodox, Conservative or Reform, and when they said they were identified with a Reform congregation in their community, he called the Reform Rabbi of Hartford and arranged for the young people to be married by the Rabbi and even made available the very beautiful colonial courtroom of the town hall of the community for the wedding.

The young couple called on the Rabbi, discussed matters. The Rabbi saw no good reason for a marriage without the presence of the parents and urged the young people to communicate with their parents. They agreed. The parents arrived to be present at the marriage of their children, and when last seen a happy group was going to a restaurant to celebrate a happy event.

We mention this because of the exemplary attitude of the Judge. He is the Honorable Clarence H. Smith, Judge of Probate in East Hartford. (He is a brother of the former Mayor Smith of Hartford.) He is himself a devout religionist and has consistently refused to officiate at civil ceremonies, firm in his belief in the need and value of the religious ceremony. We commend his reverence, his respect for religion generally, and the tactful and firm way in which he taught a Jewish young couple a valuable lesson. He set an example which other public officials might well follow—one which many of our public officials who are Jews and who have the right to perform a marriage ceremony may also do well to emulate.

other fellow-beings, and yet maintaining its identity, its traditions, its customs, its religion—a warm and fructifying stream which is in reality a vital part of the great ocean of the noblest humanity."

Now if you've ever been to North Carolina you will be familiar with the name Vance. In practically every town in the state there is a Vance street or avenue or square, and I believe there is a town and a country both named after him. Of course, I had run across the name (there is a dormitory on the campus at the University named after him) but I didn't know of any connection Zebulon B. Vance had with the Jews until one day when I was interviewing the late Robert Worth Bingham, of Louisville, who was at that time Ambassador to England. Ambassador Bingham told me he had been given a copy of "The Scattered Nation" when he was quite young by his father, who had admonished him to be kind to his Jewish neighbors, and that that lesson had stuck with him ever since.

I am ashamed to say it, but I have never read "The Scattered Nation," but hope to before you see this item in print this Friday.

Freedom of the Press

The friendly spirit engendered by this sort of reciprocity is not likely to disappear when peace is re-established. It has manifested itself in a dozen different ways. When the pious gray-beards in the East End tried to hold services and organize study in the air-raid shelters, during the tragic winter of 1940-41, the local Christian clergy did everything they could to assist them. Moreover, the non-Jewish element in the shelters frequently saw Jewish ceremonials practised for the first time, and came to appreciate something of their intimate charm.

In country areas, where Jews and non-Jews have thronged from the danger areas of the cities, a similar religious reciprocity has manifested itself. In most cases there were formerly no Jewish communities in these areas, and the reorganization of religious life has presented difficulties which were lacking in the case of other denominations.

All over England wartime Jewish congregations have been organized. They differ in character and outlook to some extent, but they have one common characteristic. In a large proportion of cases they have been given the hospitality of the local church halls, as synagogues for occasional services, for class rooms, and for community centers. The hour of danger has brought home to all that there is more in our common religious life to bind us than to divide us.

I will write on the evacuation problem which is confronting Anglo-Jewry in my next letter, to do so now, would make this letter much too long for publication.
